Must Help Viet Nam More, Says Defense Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today the United States must expand its commitments in South Viet Nam to meet a marked step-up in terror attacks by Communist guerrillas.

McNamara, who returned from Saigon this morning, conferred at the White House with President Johnson and then held a news conference at which he said the United States may have to send additional uniformed personnel to South Viet Nam.

Flanked by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, McNamara said American military and economic aid will be increased. And, he said, "It may be necessary to send additional U.S. personnel" on training missions.

McNamara said he would be meeting again with Johnson on Friday and Saturday.

The defense secretary said the Viet Cong guerrillas have "increased very substantially" their terrorist attacks on the rural populace in South Viet Nam. He said these attacks have been marked by kidnappings, murder, ambush and such atrocities as the beheading of local leaders.

McNamara said it was "absolutely essential" that the anti-Communist government of South Viet Nam counter these attacks.

He said South Viet Nam must increase "very substantially" the number of regular and paramilitary troops in its army. And he said there must be a 100 per cent increase in the number of Vietnamese pilots, backed up by additional aircraft.

Asked whether he thought the guerrilla war could be won, McNamara said "I remain personally convinced" that persistent execution of political and military plans will lead to a successful outcome.

He said victory "isn't going to come soon," however. He predicted "a long hard war" that might force reappraisal of U.S. plans to withdraw its forces in South Viet Nam by the end of next year.

McNamara was asked about the possibility of carrying the war into North Viet Nam. He replied that the type of attacks being mounted by the Communists requires counter action "on the soil of South Viet Nam." He said any military action in the north, which he declined to rule out, could only supplement moves in the south.

The defense secretary was asked about speculation that troops from Nationalist China might be sent to South Viet Nam. He declined to name any countries but said he certainly hoped "more flags" would be seen in the war zone. He said there is a particular need for medical, training and advisory personnel.

McNamara said he has received "a sympathetic response" to requests he has made to other governments for troops to be used in South Viet Nam. But he would not name the countries involved.

Earlier, when he arrived from Saigon, McNamara told newsmen in response to questions that he would be happy to report to a congressional committee on the situation in Viet Nam.

Wives and children are invited for this one, and co-chairmen Forest Singleton and Bud Collier have asked that you contact the Chamber of Commerce office and let them know if you plan to attend. This information is needed so the Shover Spring ladies will know how many to prepare for.

Air Force Encouraging All of Its Members to Learn an Additional Language

By PHIL GUNBY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Air Force has announced that it is encouraging as many of its people as possible to learn an additional language.

But the suggestion has been made in some quarters that the Air Force already speaks a language other than English.

As overheard at Lockbourne Air Force Base here—a giant field for bombers, transports, aerial refuelers, interceptors and fighters that support foot soldiers—this language of the blue yonder seems to be compounded of:

1. Words more or less familiar to the public from World War II or before. An Air Force man doesn't say "Okay" or "No" in response to inquiries, instructions or the imparting of information. He says "Roger" or, in this jet age, just "Rog."

2. Technical terms. Complicated new military equipment and techniques have created a special vocabulary. Most are specific—and some well night unpronounceable—but airmen speak sweepingly and lovingly of the "black boxes," components, usually electronic, in their planes and missiles.

3. Initials, many of which have become words. Some stand for organizations, like SAC, pronounced "sack" and meaning Strategic Air Command. Some stand for equipment. "Radar" is an acronym made up of initial letters of the words, "Radio Detection And Ranging."

Exiles Declare Cuba Raid Just the Beginning

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Exile forces say their attack on a sugar mill and port in eastern Cuba is just the beginning in their war of sabotage and nerves aimed at toppling Fidel Castro's Communist regime.

The Revolutionary Recovery Movement, a military action group, said in its "first war communique" Wednesday that a combined raid by seaborne commandos and guerrillas already in the hills gained control of the port of Pilon for three hours and left the sugar mill burning. It said other raids would come soon.

Prime Minister Castro in a statement acknowledged the attack, but said it came from a ship standing at sea and not from ground forces.

Castro's angry comment was broadcast by Havana Radio about 15 hours after the attack, which the exiles said took place at 3:50 a.m. Wednesday.

The communique did not give the number of the attacking force but listed commandos, frogmen, combat engineers, signal corps and torpedo units, as well as guerrillas, as participants.

New Plank in 6th Term Platform

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus laid down another plank in his sixth term campaign platform today—a statewide beautification program.

"This would be a permanent program," Faubus said at a news conference. "We'll ask anyone who is interested to join with us. We'll need the cooperation of cities, counties, home demonstration clubs, garden clubs and other organizations."

He said he would expect the state Planning Commission, Highway Commission, Publicity and Game and Fish Commission to support the program.

"I will suggest to the legislature that we include (earmarked) beautification funds in the budgets of these agencies," he said.

Faubus said he would like to see landscaping along state highways, planting of flowering shrubs and trees in state parks and eradication of eyesores.

He said he did not plan to attempt to outlaw advertising signs because such an attempt would generate opposition to his program.

Some stand for jobs: "ac" for aircraft commander; for conditions, "acop" for aircraft out of commission for parts; for techniques, "jato" for jet-assisted takeoff; or people, whether a plain GI or a VIP.

But this is only part of the winged vernacular. Maybe it's sheer high-flying enthusiasm, but the airman seems to try to find a synonym or new phrase for practically everything.

His base is "the home patch." His plane is "the bird," although certain types get such nicknames as "the lead sled" or "the goon."

The pilot is a "tiger," "jock" or "hero." He doesn't just retract the plane's wheels on takeoff, he "sucks up the gear." If he has to drop the auxiliary fuel tanks he "punches off the cans."

If he's straining to see, particularly under trying conditions, it's a matter of "eyeballs on the plexiglass" in his "little office" which, of course, is the cockpit. Now and then things get become concerned about "buying the farm"—a fatality phrase probably acquired from the Royal Air Force.

But, when all is well once more, he sums it up in two words which might be considered the unofficial motto of Air Force confidence and typical of its unique language: "No Sweat."

Denies Involvement in Castro Raid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department denied today any United States involvement in the anti-Castro raid Wednesday on a sugar mill in Cuba.

A department spokesman also denied that any CIA money was used to finance the raid.

Some officials, obviously seeking to dissociate the Washington government from the new anti-Castro refugee activity, said authorities here generally disapproved use of U.S. territory for announcement and discussion of the action by its sponsors.

Public Is Warned on Trash Laws

The Hempstead County Sheriff's Office and the Office of the Prosecuting Attorney today issued the following statement today concerning the dumping of trash on lands owned by others:

"The Sheriff's Office and the Prosecuting Attorney's Office have been receiving many complaints from all over the county concerning persons who are willfully throwing away their trash upon lands owned by others and not disposing of said trash in a proper manner. It was pointed out that the law of Arkansas reads as follows: 'Hereafter it shall be unlawful for any person to dump or unload any trash, junk, or waste of any kind upon the premises or property of another person or persons, without written consent from owner of such premises or property; further it shall not be necessary for owners of real estate to post signs or notices upon their property to warn trespassers. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $10.00 nor more than $500.00.'

These law enforcement agencies making this statement have indicated that steps are being taken to apprehend violators. It was made clear that the word trash includes the carcass of any dead animal, cans, bottles, papers, ashes or refuse of any sort.

The general public was asked to cooperate in helping your law enforcement agencies enforce this particular act."

Leaders Seek Help on Rights Compromise

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders face the task today of winning support for a batch of compromise amendments aimed at cracking the long civil rights stalemate.

Key Republican and Democratic senators agreed on the compromise package Wednesday after their sixth meeting with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy. The next step will be an effort by the leaders to sell the proposed changes to their rank-and-file members at party caucuses—on Tuesday for the Republicans, and probably for the Democrats, too.

The big question is whether the amendments, which restrict the scope of the House bill, will make it possible to win over enough senators to invoke cloture and thus shut off the Southern oratory blocking action on the measure.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen appears to have the tougher task since he conceded he must produce 25 of the 33 Republican senators if cloture is to be achieved.

The Democratic leaders must produce either 41 or 42 of their 67 members. There are 18 Southern Democrats and one Republican—Texan John C. Tower—in the group opposed to the bill.

Assistant Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey, the bill's floor manager, pointed out that cloture could be achieved with 41 from his side if only 99 senators vote, as seems likely. Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., is ill and is not expected to be on hand.

To impose cloture requires the votes of two thirds of the senators present.

Humphrey said that, even if the package wins wide acceptance at the conference next week, an attempt will not be made to invoke cloture immediately.

"We will first have to take the floor and explain the amendments carefully," he said.

Humphrey said he now believes that the amendments would be offered in the form of a substitute for the entire House-passed bill. This would have the advantage of acting on them with one vote.

The Southerners have demonstrated their ability to prevent any votes they do not agree to. And today—the 55th day of debate—they had orators ready to continue on a team led by Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala.

Dirksen declined to go into details of the final agreements on the package.

Spa Probe Asked on Police Brutality

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Justice Department was asked by letter Tuesday to investigate alleged police brutality in Hot Springs.

L. C. Bates, field secretary for the NAACP in Arkansas, said he wanted an investigation of the case of Charles E. Walker, 30, a Negro of Hot Springs. Bates said Walker claimed police broke into his home and beat him. Earlier, police had told Walker to go to the jail, and he did, but left when the officers who told him to go there did not show up, Bates said.

Police Chief John Ermyer of Hot Springs denied the charge that his officers beat Walker.

"I filed a report on it with the FBI a week ago," Ermyer said. "They didn't ask for it. We just filed it."

Confidence Pushing Business Orders Ahead Without Any Wait for Consumer Sales

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Confidence is pushing business orders and plans ahead without waiting for consumer sales to catch fire.

Many executives have their eyes on the autumn when they think the consumers will join the parade. This spring the flag is being carried by business itself.

Some firms are starting to build up inventories.

Many factories report new orders nicely ahead of a year ago. And some $50.7 billion of unfilled orders at the end of March assure busy weeks ahead.

Even the steel industry is doing some second guessing. In April it found the big late winter spurt in orders leveling off. Now it reports orders for June delivery above earlier expectations.

Many mills now anticipate a much smaller dip in shipments next month than they did a few weeks back.

The auto industry will go into its usual summer slowdown for model changeovers, complicated this year by what could be more than normally heated labor negotiations.

New strength in steel orders is coming from the railroads, appliances, farm implements and construction. The metalworking weekly Iron Age says that some mills are lengthening their delivery promises because of this, although a steel shortage isn't in the picture by any means.

Also helping the steel outlook for summer is a change in imports—some are being priced higher and some foreign mills are finding larger markets at home and less urge to sell here.

Lagging retail volume in March acted as a drag on total business sales, the Department of Commerce reports. The total of manufacturing, wholesale and retail trade in March was put at $70.9 billion, compared with February's record $71 billion.

The final days of April showed a pickup, attributable in large part to better weather. And most merchants are looking for good figures in May.

It's the autumn, though, on which their expectations are being built. By then, the retail spokesmen figure, consumers will really be spending that additional $8 billion which the cut in federal income taxes was designed to give them.

Quarantine for Boll Worm Spreads

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department said Wednesday it is adding 28 counties and parts of 8 others in Arkansas to the list of those under federal quarantine on the pink bollworm.

The additional counties are Calhoun, Chicot, Clark, Columbia, Dallas, Franklin, Garland, Hot Spring, Howard, Independence, Jackson, Johnson, Lafayette, Lawrence, Little River, Logan, Miller, Montgomery, Nevada, Ouachita, Perry, Pike, Polk, Pope, Scott, Sevier, Union and Yell.

Parts of these counties were added to the list: Cleburne, Cleveland, Greene, Lonoke, Pulaski, Saline, White and Woodruff.

The department said the order requiring specific export licenses for shipments of food and medicines "does not mean that such shipments are precluded, but that the department wishes to be informed of all intended trade with Cuba and thereby be in a position to act according to the national interest of the United States. Each decision will be made in the light of all relevant circumstances."

Turkey, Greece Agree to NATO Mediation

By JOSEPH E. DYMAN
THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—The North Atlantic pact foreign ministers today headed off a potential conflict between Greece and Turkey, but they failed to heal differences between France and the other members on the future of NATO.

In winding up their spring session they pledged their best efforts at ending the cold war with the Soviet Union. Yet they noted in their official communique that little progress could be expected unless the Soviets permit the reunification of Germany on a basis of self-determination.

The ministers promised they would speak more freely and more frankly to one another in the future in an effort to remove misunderstandings and thus bolster the NATO system.

"Every suitable opportunity should be taken to bring nearer to realization the wish of the German people for reunification in freedom," their communique said.

Lured Back, German Now in Prison

BERLIN (AP)—An East German trapeze artist who crawled a high tension line to West Berlin 17 months ago was lured back by his wife and is now in a Red prison, a close relative said today.

The wife has divorced him and married another man.

The relative said the circus performer, Horst Klein, went back to East Berlin last July, after receiving letters from his wife, Sylvia, who said she could not go on living without him.

"As soon as Horst got back, he was arrested and last December he was sentenced to 30 months at hard labor," the relative, who asked not to be named, said in an interview.

"The worst thing is, Horst's wife obtained a divorce in February and last month she remarried."

Klein, who was 38 Wednesday, escaped to West Berlin in December 1962, after he was forbidden to work in a circus because he was too outspokenly anti-Communist.

Klein climbed a pylon supporting power cables spanning the barbed wire barricades and the Teltow Canal.

He did not know that the 110,000 volt line no longer was in use. Fearful of being electrocuted he used his acrobatic agility to leap from the pylon to insulators and then from the insulators to the cable.

Tear Gas Not Cause of Death

By TOM STUCKEY
CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)—Maryland's chief medical examiner said today no "gross signs" of tear gas were found during an autopsy on a Cambridge infant whose death Negro leaders linked to the use of the gas by National Guard troops.

Dr. Russell S. Fisher said in Baltimore the autopsy showed the Negro child, Rudolph A. Perry Jr., died of congenital heart disease. The autopsy was performed by Dr. Fisher and Dr. Marion Mann, assistant professor of pathology at the Howard University Medical School in Washington.

Dr. Fisher said he and Dr. Mann also found an infection in one ear of the two-month-old boy. The infant died Tuesday night in the Perry home, about 100 yards from where Guardsmen sprayed tear gas Monday night to break up a racial demonstration.

Further tests and studies will be made and a more detailed report will be issued next Wednesday, Dr. Fisher said.

Lawrence Cundiff of the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee announced the death Wednesday, saying he believed tear gas was the cause.

The third showdown in three days between racial demonstrators and National Guard troops in Cambridge ended tensely but without violence or arrests.

Atom Project Is Going to Fayetteville

WASHINGTON (AP)—A contract which will permit a start on a $25 million atomic electric research project near Fayetteville, Ark., was signed today by the Atomic Energy Commission and a group known as the Southwest Atomic Energy Associates.

Under the contract the commission will contribute not to exceed $12.7 million for the project which will involve research and development in fast breeder reactor technology.

Immediately after the signing, Reeves Ritchie, president of Arkansas Power & Light Co., one of the 17 concerns in the Southwest Atomic Energy Associates—announced that work on the project is expected to start immediately.

The research center, which will be the largest research facility in Arkansas, will be located on a 620-acre tract 17 miles southwest of Fayetteville, near Strickler, Ark.

The contract provides for a program to demonstrate that large fast breeder reactors fueled with ceramic elements made up of a mixture of plutonium and uranium oxides are economical, reliable and safe.

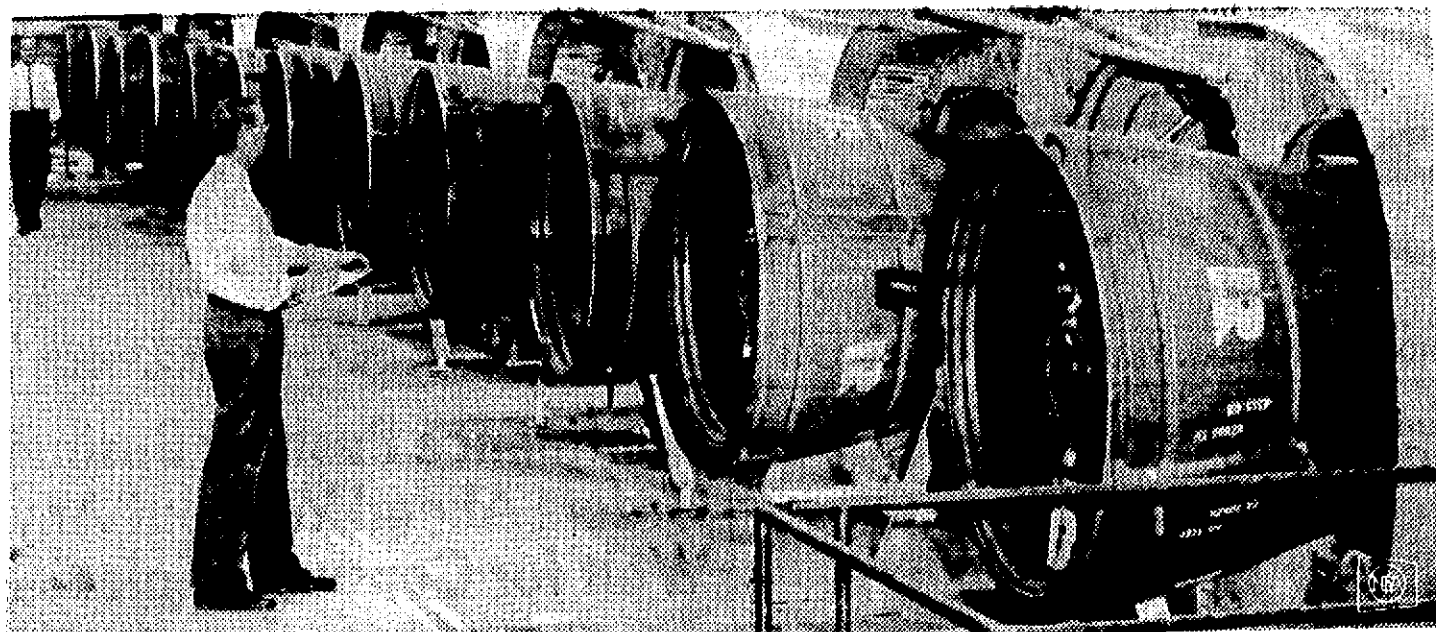

Southwest Associates was organized by the electric group in 1967, to finance research as part of a program to develop nuclear reactors and nuclear fuel for the generation of electric power.

The Arkansas experimental reactor, however, will produce neither electricity nor process heat, AEC said.

The group's first research program was a $5 million dollar project conducted by Atomics International in Canoga Park, Calif. It then started negotiations which led to the Southwest Experimental Fast Oxide Reactor project in Arkansas.

The southwest group will receive financial aid from Gesellschaft fur Kernforschung, a West German non-profit corporation, in behalf of itself and the European Atomic Energy Community, the AEC said in its announcement.

Weather Damages Valuable Land

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service estimated Wednesday that about 200,000 acres of permanent-type pastures and meadows were seriously damaged or destroyed by the recent dry summers and hard winters.

The drought interfered with re-seeding processes, leaving bare places in the fields, the ASCS said.

The cost of re-establishing a permanent cover crop on the damaged or destroyed land would be about $5 million, it said.

The drought existed for almost two years. Last winter was more severe than usual, according to Weather Bureau records.

prime contractor for the utility group in operating the facility and for conducting the research program, AEC said. GE estimates it will cost $12,350,000 to design and build the reactor. The southwest group is to pay $5,900,000 of the cost, Gesellschaft fur Kernforschung $5 million.

Construction is expected to take about three years.

Electric companies in the southwest group include:

This is an oft-repeated aim of NATO, and they said again that the German problem can only be settled by the will of the German people.

Turning to the immediate problem of Cyprus, the ministers expressed concern at the Greek-Turkish Cypriot fighting and said NATO would support fully U.N. efforts to bring peace to the troubled island.

Some of the concern over Cyprus was eased earlier in the day when Greece and Turkey agreed to accept the mediation of the NATO secretary-general in their bitter dispute over the eastern Mediterranean island.

The ministers instructed NATO Secretary-General Dirk U. Stikker to act as conciliator but there was no reference to this step in the communique.

Officials explained that Stikker would be acting under a 1956 council resolution concerning disputes between member states of the alliance. This resolution authorized the secretary-general to keep in touch with all parties and with the permanent NATO council in such cases.

THE HAGUE (AP)—Greece and Turkey agreed today to accept mediation by the NATO secretary-general of their bitter dispute over Cyprus, a source at the North Atlantic Alliance's spring meeting of foreign ministers reported today.

Exiles Declare

The exiles claimed they suffered no losses but said there was "tenacious fighting" with "a numerically superior Communist army." A spokesman for the invaders said Castro forces suffered considerable losses.

While commandos held Polon, said the communists, engineers set off demolition charges at the mill, then withdrew. Guerrillas returned to the hills, the exiles said. Some townspeople in the area welcomed the attackers, they added.

Castro said the U.S. government, "not satisfied with the economic blockade and other aggressions, is using mercenaries and traitors" to carry out acts of vandalism.

The U.S. State Department denied it.

Castro said the attack caused loss of 70,000 bags of sugar (of 220 pounds each), that many houses of workers were strafed and that a woman and an 8-year-old girl were wounded. Manuel Artime, head of Revolutionary Recovery Movement, accompanied Wednesday's raiders, the organization said. He was one of 1,100 prisoners of the Bay of Pigs invasion who were released in exchange for the $53-million ransom.

The House Armed Services Committee has indicated it expects McNamara to appear to discuss complaints of obsolete equipment, and to report on the general outlook of the protracted war in the Southeast Asian country.

McNamara was asked by newsmen how long he thinks the war will last.

He replied that it will be "a long war, a hard war—the path to victory will be long."

He said, however, that "I firmly believe that persistent execution" of plans will lead to eventual success.

The Pentagon chief also told newsmen plans are being developed to more than double the personnel of the Viet Nam air force in a few months.

The Vietnamese air force now has about 400 pilots.

To another question, McNamara replied that the size of the U.S. training force in Viet Nam is sufficient at the present, but that if more men are needed to help in the expansion of the ground and air forces and train them, the men can be sent.

McNamara said he and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, discussed with U.S. officials in Viet Nam the program of replacing the present T38 and B26 planes with the Navy-designed Skyraider aircraft.

McNamara said the types of planes sent to Viet Nam were chosen for two reasons — because they would be useful in the guerrilla type war; because they were intended for operation by the Vietnamese.

Returning with McNamara were Taylor and Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

This was McNamara's fifth trip to Viet Nam.

His public optimism as he flew back into Washington was in line with what he had been saying en route.

"I am convinced" McNamara said Wednesday on a stopover at Honolulu, "that the persistent execution of the political and military plans which the South Viet Nam government has and which we are supporting will lead to a successful conclusion of this war."

President Johnson will want to know the details that support this optimism and presumably will have McNamara report quickly. But whether Johnson will see him today is uncertain because the President is flying

More Snakes Turned Free Than Killed

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP)—Residents of this lower Rio Grande Valley town were jittery today at the thought of 10 to 20 hungry rattlesnakes wandering near schools in town.

An estimated 25 to 35 of the reptiles were released from a box Wednesday — apparently as a joke — and only 15 were killed in a massive snake hunt which lasted until 1 a.m. and was resumed at dawn.

Roger Miller, an Edinburg mechanic, was collecting the snakes to sell to a Laredo firm which pays 75 cents a pound.

Miller kept the snakes in a wood box placed in an old car body. He discovered when he returned from work Wednesday someone had pried the top off the box. The snakes had escaped out a window of the car he left cracked for ventilation.

"One was crawling out the window, and another was wrapped around the headlight when I came out," he said. "I killed them, but the rest of them were gone."

Police, volunteer firemen and area residents joined the hunt. By 10 p.m. more than 150 persons were searching, with flashlights, guns, sticks and two-way radios.

Police Chief Leroy Easton expressed concern for students. Miller's home is across the street from Pan American College, and is near two public schools.

Bids Submitted for Housing

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) — Forbes Homes Co., Inc., of Bald Knob submitted an apparent low bid of $277,770 Wednesday to build 32 low-rent public housing units for the elderly here. Construction is scheduled to begin about June 10.

to Missouri to attend the funeral of Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo. Before leaving Saigon, McNamara said marked progress had been made in implementing plans to increase the strength and firepower of the Vietnamese air force.

But in Honolulu he sidestepped a question of whether structural failure had led to the losses of some planes used in the war—a possibility, Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert conceded in a letter to Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., of the House Armed Services Committee released in Washington Wednesday.

"The war effort will be long and drawn out," he should not delude ourselves on this score," McNamara said. At the same time he said he had never estimated the possible length of the war.

Some earlier reports from Saigon (not Associated Press) quoted him as saying the war would last five to 10 years. "I was misquoted in Saigon," McNamara declared at Pearl Harbor.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—In all the dust kicked up by the three-cornered battle of words over the television Emmy, an important television move has been obscured.

The producer of two of television's five dramatic series which are shot in New York, has picked up his staff and cast and moved to California. The shows are CBS' "The Defenders" and "The Nurses." The emergency move was forced by a strike of a local independent union of scenic and costume designers, making it impossible to continue shooting fall episodes on schedule.

The strike also halted production of CBS' new series, "The Reporter." Two other New York based series were unaffected simply because they were not in production, CBS' "Mr. Broadway," and ABC's "Patty Duke Show."

Michael Dann, CBS programming vice president, said he believed that if the New York-made shows were forced to go to California to make their programs on schedule, "it will be the end of New York production of dramatic shows."

"I think that if they have once moved out there, and get their standing sets built, it will be too expensive for them to pick up and move back again," he said.

Chuck Connors, who had contracts with Universal and Revue studios, has terminated both "by mutual agreement," as they always say.

Connors was under Revue contract for "Arrest and Trial,"

"DEAR ABBY"

ON SAME SIDE!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: Why do so many nice people with dogs have so little regard for their guests' comfort? When we visit these people, their dog jumps up on us the moment the door is opened. As soon as we sit down, the dog jumps up on the furniture right next to us. When we sit at the dining room table, the dog is under the table, with his nose on our legs. He even puts his paws up on the tablecloth, "begging" for food. (The master thinks nothing of feeding the animal from his hand, and then goes right on eating. Yich!) We love dogs, Abby, and have always had one. But when we entertain, our dog is not included with the guests. Do you agree with those who have the "Love us, love our dog" attitude? Or can you see our side of it?

THE "E's" in HILLSBOROUGH

Dear "E's": I can more than see your side of it—I'm ON IT!

Dear Abby: With so much divorce and remarrying these days, isn't there some wedding etiquette for divorced parents of the bride and groom? Say the bride's parents are divorced and have both remarried, but the bride wants her real father to give her away. Where does the father go to sit after he has given the bride away? Surely he doesn't go to sit with the bride's mother, who is sitting with her present husband! And if everyone is friendly, and the father's present wife is invited to the wedding, where does SHE sit? Should she be right up front with the relatives in the wedding party, and beside her husband at the head table at the wedding dinner?

NEEDS TO KNOW

Dear Needs: The bride's mother and present family sit in the first pew. The bride's father, after giving his daughter in marriage, then goes to sit with his present wife and family in the second pew. The father's present wife sits beside him at the wedding dinner.

Dear Abby: A young, rather pretty little married woman lives next door to me, and she is always telling me that a door-to-door salesman made a pass at her and she had to put him in his place. She claims the mailman, milkman and grocery man have also made improper advances to her, and she had to tell them off.

Abby, I have the same mailman milkman, grocery man, and the same salesmen calling on me, and I have never had one speck of trouble with any of them. Do you think she is making all this up, or can it be true?

WONDERING

Dear Wondering: She's probably making it up. But if only part of it is true, she should take a good look at herself in the mirror, and listen to herself talk.

Dear Abby: Concerning the man who accused his good and which recently died miserably and undeservedly in a bad Sunday night ABC time spot, and was under a seven-year contract to make one theater film a year.

Connors is an attractive, popular performer and already has interesting offers from David Susskind and Goodson-Todman, the game show people who apparently have not been discouraged by two tentative steps into the dramatic field — "The Rebel," a half-hour Western that didn't last long, and "The Richard Boone Show," an expensive casualty of this season.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) The wild shock of hair is thinner, the frame seems slighter than it did when covered by satin robes. But the hands of Blackstone the magician remains as supple and steady as when they baffled audiences from coast to coast.

At 78, Harry Blackstone lives in Hollywood and still keeps in touch with his magical art.

"I'm not retired—just tired," he cracks.

Blackstone is the sole survivor of the great era of American magic that also produced such names as Houdini, Keller and Thurston. All mounted big shows that played theaters and vaudeville houses in the first few decades of this century. Blackstone was the last to leave the field.

"I quit eight years ago," he said. "I lost $35,000 one year, $60,000 the next and $90,000 the next.

"I just couldn't buck television. People didn't want to pay $5.50 a seat to watch magic when they could stay at home for nothing and watch television and drink beer."

His 200 major tricks were put into storage in Hollywood, New York City, Philadelphia, York, Pa., and his longtime home at Colon, Mich.

Many are major productions; he figures his girl-in-levitation stunt cost $17,000 to conceive. Of late he has been selling the tricks to professional and amateur magicians—one famous Hollywood figure has bought several.

Blackstone timed those tricks to the split second and cherished each one, yet he parts with them without regret. He looks cheerfully back on a life and career that were full and gratifying.

He was infected with the magic virus in 1898, when he saw a performance of the great Keller in Chicago. The boy sneaked out his bedroom window to see the show again and his return was discovered by his father. When young Harry confessed where he had gone, his father said, "Why didn't you tell me? I'd have gone with you."

Father and son saw the show every night for a week, and Harry met Keller backstage. The trouper's advice on how to be a magician: "By using that part of your anatomy from your neck up."

Blackstone began in amateur shows, then was able to leave his steel foundry job for his first professional date: playing a St. Paul hotel with a brand-new movie, "The Great Train Robbery."

In his prime he traveled with a troupe of 37 and earned as much as $6,000 a day during a Norfolk date in the 1920s.

He lives with his cheery wife in a Hollywood apartment containing mementoes of his past. He often appears at the nearby Magic Castle, club for magic men and their guests, and will make appearances "for anyone foolish enough to hire me."

No Doubt Left That Mays Is All Time Great

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays has wiped out all remaining doubt concerning his place among the all-time baseball greats. He is the acknowledged king of center fielders today. There is hardly a dissenting voice.

Even the diehards among the veteran coterie, always loyal to their contemporaries, agree that the San Francisco Special rates high among the all-time great center fielders.

This was put into greater focus by Mays' tremendous getaway this season, a scorching start that promises to bring new and greater honors to the player who has been the heartbeat of the Giants through 12 brilliant seasons.

At his current pace, Willie, ever the spectacular fielder and base runner, threatens not only to become baseball's first 400 hitter in 23 years but has an outside chance to surpass the home run records of Babe Ruth and Roger Maris.

Septuagenarian Casey Stengel, who has seen all the great center fielders of the last 50 years, speaks of Mays in the same breath with Tris Speaker and Joe DiMaggio.

"I had Mickey Mantle," said Stengel, "but I've got to say who is better than Mays today?" "Next to DiMaggio and Speaker, Mays has got to be the best center fielder and I've seen some 15 good ones. Fellows like Edd Roush, Max Carey, Terry Moore, Happy Welsch and Jigger Statz."

"Mays has a chance to wind up with DiMaggio and Speaker. He's got all the points. He can field, throw, run, hit and hit with power... and he makes it look easy. There was never a player who made it look easier than DiMaggio."

"Mantle belongs with those fellows, too. He might even be better than Mays if he could keep from getting hurt. I would like to have seen how far Mantle could go without those injuries."

Frankie Frisch, a staunch defender of the past, said he found it difficult to choose between DiMaggio and Mays for top rating among the center fielders.

"I can't make a choice between them," he said. "DiMaggio, could do everything. So can Mays. Joe had that something extra. So does Mays. I'd break my neck to have either one on my team."

Hubbard also called it a photo finish between DiMaggio and Mays.

Age, Rookie May End Don Hoak's Career

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two years ago Don Hoak dressed slowly in the Pittsburgh clubhouse, the only player still remaining. A messenger came in and told Hoak that his wife, singer Jill Corey, was waiting for him outside.

"I hate to have her wait in the rain," said Hoak, "but the guys who hustle in and out of the clubhouse usually wind up hustling themselves out of baseball."

Hoak, however, may have come to the end of the line anyway.

Age and a rookie third baseman named Richie Allen—probably have ended his 11-year major league career despite the self-imposed conservation program in which he was going to store his hustle until game time and thus prolong his career.

Hoak was one of three players cut by Philadelphia Wednesday in order to get down to the mandatory 25-man player limit by the midnight deadline.

In all 23 players from 13 clubs were involved in the last-minute shuffling by the major league clubs. Seven teams already had reached the limit.

Among the other veterans cut were Baltimore pitcher Mike McCormick, outfielder Gene Cimoli of the Kansas City Athletics, Boston outfielder Gary Geiger and Cincinnati pitcher Al Worthington.

The Phillies trimmed two other players off their roster by selling relief specialist Ryne Duren to Cincinnati for more than the $20,000 waiver price and sending pitcher John Boomer to Arkansas of the Pacific Coast League.

Hoak came up to the majors in 1954 with the Brooklyn Dodgers and saw service with the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati before landing at Pittsburgh in time to help the Pirates win the National League pennant in 1960.

He hit .282 for the Pirates that year, with 16 homers and 79 runs batted in.

Hoak, now 36, was traded to Philadelphia at the end of the 1962 season, and last year hit .231 with six homers and 24 RBI for the Phillies. He had been used only as a pinch hitter this season and had failed to collect a base hit in four tries.

McCormick was optioned by the Orioles to Rochester of the International League, and will serve his first term in the minors. McCormick, a bonus baby signed by the San Francisco Giants, was 0-2 with a 3.19 earned-run average for Baltimore this season.

Cimoli, who has been out most of the season with an injured knee, had a lifetime batting average of .268. The 34-year-old outfielder was 0-for-9 this year.

Decision in Little League Baseball

In Little League baseball play the situation is this:

On a fly ball, a fielder gets his hands on a ball but it ricochets off his glove against his body where he traps the ball with his arm.

The decision—The batter is out provided the fielder does not drop the ball attempting to get it from the trapped position while securing possession with his hand.

Six Entered in Preakness Saturday

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — It cost six trainers $1,000 each today to write the names of Hill Rise, Northern Dancer, the Scoundrel, Roman Brother, Quadrangle and Big Pete.

That is the entry fee for the six 3-year-olds scheduled to match strides Saturday at 4:45 p.m. EST, in the 88th running of the Preakness at Pimlico, second leg of the Triple Crown. It'll cost another $1,000 to get into the starting line-up.

To the $12,000 and the nomination fees of $14,700 for the original list of 147, the Maryland Jockey Club adds $150,000 for a total value of $176,000. The first horse to hit the finish line at the end of the 1 3/16 miles will get $124,200. To the runner-up goes $30,000 with the third-place horse picking up $15,000 and the fourth-place finisher $7,500. That means only two of the starters will fail to pay their expenses to the ancient track with its two modern stands on the outskirts of this city.

The crowd probably will not number more than 30,000 compared to the estimated 100,000 who jammed Churchill Downs for the Kentucky Derby May 2. Pimlico is a much smaller plant than the Downs. But in turn of events, Pimlico bows to none.

The Preakness gets its name from a thoroughbred, who sold for $2,000 as a yearling in 1869, and then raced with great success in this country and England.

Preakness is an Indian name meaning "Quail Woods" and originally was spelled "Pro-quales" by the Minis Indians. Gen. George Washington spelled it "Preckness."

History, however, will mean nothing when the six thoroughbreds break from the gate and Hill Rise from George A. Pope Jr.'s El Peco Ranch of California attempts to square matters with Northern Dancer from the Canadian-owned Windfields Farm of E. P. Taylor. The Dancer beat Hill Rise by a neck in the 1 1/4 miles of the Kentucky Derby.

Hill Rise, who'll be ridden by Willie Shoemaker, again has been made the choice over the Dancer with Rex Ellsworth's The Scoundrel third in the pre-race betting line. Paul Mellon's Quadrangle and Louis Wolfson's Roman Brother co-fourth choice and Mrs. Harriet N. Ball's Big Pete the outsider.

Derby—Preakness history of the last 16 years also favors Hill Rise. Since Citation won the Triple Crown of the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes in 1948 only two Derby winners have repeated in the Preakness. They were Tim Tam in 1958 and Carry Back in 1961.

Johnson Pulls String on Mays, Giants

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Ken Johnson has given everyone the no-hit Willie again, including Mays.

Johnson, the hard-luck Houston right-hander who hadn't won in a month despite pitching a no-bitter, found the ball bouncing his way for a change Wednesday night and wound up the winner as the Colts made the most of two bad-hop hits in a 2-1 victory over National League leading San Francisco.

For six innings, Johnson was even better than he was April 23 when he set the Cincinnati Reds down without a hit but lost 1-0 on two errors in the ninth inning. This time, Johnson was leading 1-0 and working on a perfect game.

So perfect, in fact, that Willie Mays hadn't hit the ball fair in two trips to the plate, fouling out and striking out. Then, in the seventh, Jesus Alou smacked Johnson's first pitch for a double and Matty Alou followed with a single—bringing up Mays.

Mays, however, couldn't get it out of the infield this time either, hitting a grounder as Jesus Alou was trapped in a rundown between second and third. Johnson then got out of the jam and got a couple of breaks in the bottom of the inning.

With two out, a shot by Bob Aspromonte ricocheted past first baseman Orlando Cepeda for a double and Rusty Staub sent him to third by lining a drive that skipped past shortstop Jose Pagan. Ron Herbel came on in relief of Bob Hendley at this point and proceeded to wild-pitch the decisive run across.

Johnson left in the eighth, but eventually wound up with his first victory since April 18.

And Mays, faced with his first hitless performance since the third game of the season, eventually wound up with his only hit in four trips, singling off Hal Woodeshick in the ninth. That extended his hitting streak to 20 games, although his batting average dropped 10 points to .468.

Only one other National League game was played, the New York Mets defeating Milwaukee 5-2. Three games were rained out—Los Angeles at Chicago, St. Louis at Philadelphia and Cincinnati at Pittsburgh.

In American League action, the Chicago White Sox whipped Minnesota 5-1. Cleveland defeated Boston 3-0 in a game held to six innings by rain and in a two-nighter the Los Angeles Angels won the opener from Kansas City 9-0 before the A's took the nightcap 2-0.

The New York Yankees and Detroit were locked in a 1-1 tie after six innings when rain postponed their game. Baltimore and Washington also were washed out.

Johnson had nursed a 1-0 lead since Rusty Staub's homer put the Colts in front in the fourth inning. But he tired in the eighth when the Giants scored on a pinch-hit double by Duke Snider and Jesus Alou's single. That made the bad hop hits original ly ruled errors by the official scorer—decisive.

"Sure, I wanted to finish it," said Johnson after the game. "But I really didn't mind coming out. I'd put a lot into those pitches. You have to against this club. Those first six innings were as good as I've ever pitched."

Jesse Gonder's homer in the first inning got the Mets off to an early lead over the Braves and winning pitcher Jack Fisher drove in two more runs with a sacrifice fly and a double. Fisher pitched shutout ball for seven innings but needed Larry Bear-narth's relief help in the eighth.

Dave Nicholson hit a three-run homer and Pete Ward drove in two runs with a double for the White Sox while Juan Pizarro held the Twins to four hits. Pizarro, now 3-0, held the American League's leading hitter, Tony Oliva, hitless in four trips, lowering his average to .423, but lost his shutout when Bob Allison homered in the ninth.

Dick Donovan, who had to leave after he was hit by a pitch in the third inning, and Sonny Siebert combined to limit the Red Sox to two hits in the rain-shortened game at Cleveland.

Barry Latman pitched a seven-hitter for the Angels in the opener and Lee Thomas and Jim Fregosi each hit a homer and drove in three runs. In the nightcap, Orlando Pena and John Wyatt collaborated on a four-hitter for the A's while Doc Edwards and Ed Charles drove in the runs off Bo Belinsky.

Faubus got a fan letter the other day that left his aides chuckling.

The writer praised the governor and pledged eternal allegiance to him. He ended his letter with the words, "I've got your picture right between (Former President) Eisenhower's and (the late President) Kennedy's."

Eisenhower and Faubus were protagonists in the 1957 federal and state struggle over Central High School integration. Kennedy and Faubus were worlds apart on civil rights.

Bennett and Faubus Get Along Well

By JOHN R. STARR

Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett has been through the buzz-saw of a campaign against Gov. Orval E. Faubus. Now he and the governor have a sort of mutual admiration society and the attorney general sleeps better.

Bennett still wants to be governor. He makes no effort to hide that. But he now is willing to wait until Faubus steps aside.

Meanwhile, he is full of sympathy for those who elect to take on the governor head and head. In a recent speech at Pine Bluff he referred specifically to Winthrop Rockefeller, the Republican, and said the Squire of Petit Jean's chances against Faubus were "slim."

Committee May Give Up Aid Measure

By STANLEY MEISLER
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's $3.4-billion foreign aid bill may come out of the House Foreign Affairs Committee today intact.

If so, this will be the first time that a President's foreign aid request has passed the first barrier on the long congressional road without being sliced at least a little bit.

This would not mean, however, that Johnson is sure to end up with the $3.4 billion he wants. The bill now in the committee only authorizes the money. After Congress is finished with that bill, it starts work on another to appropriate the money. The big cuts—if any—would come then.

But Johnson's hopes received a firm boost Wednesday when the committee in executive session, rejected all attempts to cut the bill. This represented a major victory in the Johnson strategy of giving Congress a bill that he said already was bare to the bone.

And the controversies that lie ahead today do not center on money cuts at all. Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., said that the committee will take up three money items today—military assistance, the contingency fund and administration costs of foreign aid.

The big amendment pending calls for an increase of $250 million in military assistance and not a decrease. This has been proposed by Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., who says that the $1 billion in the bill for military assistance is not enough.

Morgan expects less of a fight over military assistance than over a provision that gives David E. Bell, director of the Agency for International Development, authority to dismiss what he considers "marginal people" from AID's Washington headquarters.

The chairman said there is a dispute between his committee and the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee about which group should have jurisdiction over this problem.

Five Persons Die as Plane Hits Houses

By MIKE GAVIN
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Five persons died when an F105 fighter plane plunged into a new housing development where housewives were hanging out laundry and children were playing on a sunny afternoon.

Moments after takeoff Wednesday from nearby Nellis Air Force Base, the jet lost altitude, wavered and then knifed into the tract. The plane exploded, spewing flames over a wide area. Seven dwellings were destroyed.

Five blocks away, 800 children were attending classes in Lincoln Elementary School. They were not endangered. The plane plummeted to earth at the far edge of the development, just short of a cleared area the pilot was fighting to reach.

The dead: 1st Lt. Raynor L. Hebert, 26, pilot, of Port Arthur, Tex.; Betty Lou Le Dane, 31, and her daughter, Teresa, 3; two children of the Paul Lowry family, Derwent, 3, and Josephine, 3 months. Aside from Hebert, all were residents of the tract.

In five days Hebert would have gone on 27 days leave. An unidentified truck driver gave this account:

"I was rounding the corner and could see the plane coming in nose up and tail down. It struck the first house with the tail aflame and skidded across the rooftops to other homes." Two weeks ago, in an interview, Brig. Gen. Boyd Hubbard, Nellis commander, had warned contractors that building homes close to the air base was "court-

Castro Gets Double Dose of Misery

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — About every 18 months something happens to give Fidel Castro the miseries. It happened again on Wednesday and this time he got a double dose.

Brazil broke relations with him. And Cuban exiles, their organization reported, raided the port of Pilon in eastern Cuba, got ashore, burned a sugar mill, and then skipped back out to sea.

This was just about 18 months after the Cuban missile crisis, which was just about 18 months after the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion.

In mid-April 1961, exiles with American backing, invaded their homeland at the Bay of Pigs but Castro finally smashed them on the beach, to the great embarrassment of the United States.

This country had been willing to back them in getting to Cuba but was unwilling to support them when the going got rough. Never again has the United States tried anything like that.

But in October, 1962—about 18 months after the Bay of Pigs—Soviet Premier Khrushchev got the bright idea of shoving Russian missiles into Cuba, which was a big help to Castro but a great dismay to this country when it found out.

The American government, which caught on through its U2 planes' photographs of what was going on down in Castro's island, then told Khrushchev to get his missiles out, or else. He agreed to remove them.

This country and Russia also agreed that an international inspection team would go into Cuba to make sure the missiles were gone. But Castro wouldn't let such outsiders in.

So the United States did the next best thing. It kept sending its picture-taking U2's over at speeds of 500 miles an hour and elevations of 90,000 feet.

While Russia had removed its big missiles it left in Cuba a batch of troops with powerful anti-aircraft missiles which could have shot down the American U2s, but didn't.

Last month word leaked out the Russians were pulling out the last of their troops and just leaving behind several hundred advisers for Castro. This would mean turning the anti-aircraft missiles over to Castro. It raised a question.

Would Castro, now that he had control, shoot down the American U2s? President Johnson said the plane flights would continue. Castro called the flights aggressive action. Russia said it would back up Castro if he was attacked.

But the United States hadn't talked of attacking. And Castro didn't quite say he would shoot down the planes. So all that died down a bit.

Then began rumors that Cuban exiles—of whom there are thousands in this country—were getting ready to bang at Cuba again, not in big waves, as at the Bay of Pigs, but in small raids and harassments.

Since the United States long ago had told the exiles they could not make raids on their homeland from American land, it was to be assumed they were making their preparations in some Latin-American country.

Castro would hardly believe that and it did not seem unlikely they were getting American help. And Wednesday they hit and scrambled away again. Whether this was just a solitary attack or the first of a series is not clear.

The Cuban dictator immediately said this was a new act of aggression by the American government. A State Department official said it was nothing of the kind, that the United States knew nothing about it.

Meanwhile, this country has been trying through the years to line up the 20-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. The development is seven miles away but in the path of runways, those on the scene said. Its homes are in the $15,000 price range.

Murder Charged in First Degree

MORRILLTON, Ark. (AP) — Raymond I. (Shorty) Long, 35, of Morrilton, has been charged with first degree murder. Deputy Pros. Atty. Phil Loh filed the charge Monday in the death of Thomas Hervie Henley, 63, also of Morrilton.

Henley and Long were jailed Friday on charges of drunkenness. Later Henley was found in a pool of blood, and died the zation of American States solidly against Castro to freeze him out in some way or other never quite clear.

This has been something short of completely successful. For one thing, while most OAS members broke off relations with Castro these five refused to do so: Brazil, Mexico, Chile, Bolivia and Uruguay.

Brazil retained its relations so long as Joao Goulart was president. But last March the Brazilian army threw out the left-leaning Goulart and set up a right-wing government that began throwing Brazilian Communists into jail.

It was expected that now Brazil would break with Castro. An Wednesday it did.

But where all this leads—in stronger OAS action or exile raids—is for the future.

Protection for McNamara in Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge escorted Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara safely into Saigon from the airport Tuesday with a technique he used in getting Soviet Premier Khrushchev from the United Nations building in New York in 1960.

This was the reason, informed sources said today, that the vehicle bringing McNamara and Lodge into Saigon left the main convey at an intersection and made its way into town along a crowded, unguarded thoroughfare.

Lodge reportedly made the choice because of the success of such tactics in getting Khrushchev safely to his residence from the United Nations after his widely reported shoe-banging episode there.

"It worked with Khrushchev. So why not with McNamara?" Lodge was reported as saying as he directed his driver away from the heavily guarded motorcade. Many American security men were unaware that Lodge was taking the unguarded route.

Prior to McNamara's arrival, American security had selected three routes into Saigon, two of them heavily secured. Two days prior to the McNamara visit three Communist Viet Cong agents had been surprised mining a bridge on the main route. By selecting the unguarded

Three Dead in Tannery Blast

PEABODY, Mass. (AP)—Three men were known dead, and at least four others were injured today when an explosion followed by fire wrecked a tannery near the center of the city.

The bodies of three workmen were found on the first floor of the Gnecco and Grik Tanning Corp. plant ever as fire roared through the six-story building. Four injured men were taken to the Josiah B. Thomas Hospital.

Policeman Louis P. Girolimon, who was on an ambulance run, was one of the first to reach the scene.

He was one of four policemen and a half-dozen firemen who went into the smoke-filled first floor searching for victims.

"We found one man in a metal clothing locker — it looked like he was trying to get away from the fire," he said. "Two others were on the floor."

Girolimon said the bodies were blackened by either smoke or fire.

About 50 were employed in the plant.

Teacher Pay Far Behind Other Fields

By G. K. MODENFIELD

WASHINGTON (AP) - Teacher salaries have nearly doubled since the 1950-51 school year, but they still lag far behind most other professional workers, the National Education Association reports.

The NEA said the national average salary of classroom teachers this year is $5,963, an increase of $231 over 1962-63.

This year's figure is 97.2 per cent higher than in 1950-51. In that 13-year period, the average salary of elementary-school teachers rose by 106.6 per cent, secondary-school teachers by 81.4 per cent.

Secondary-school teachers this year are making an average of $6,214, elementary-school teachers $5,797.

According to 1960 census figures, the NEA said the average salary for all teachers ranked 15th in a list of 20 professions. Only social and welfare workers, librarians, elementary-school teachers, clergymen and dieticians ranked below them.

Salaries of secondary-school teachers ranked slightly higher than the average for all teachers. Physicians and surgeons led the list, with average annual income three times that of teachers. No dollar figures were given.

The NEA report, "Economic Status of Teachers in 1963-64," said the typical beginning teacher in the largest cities, where the highest salaries are paid, starts at an annual salary of $4,700.

This is estimated to be at speakers, during th school Six departments - nursery through adult.

Salary Is Big Problem to Teachers

By LEN TALIAFERRO
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A continuing problem in education in Arkansas has been that of low teacher salaries. It is a point which is frequently brought out in comparison of education in Arkansas and other states.

It also is a point frequently mentioned by the Arkansas Education Association in its pleas for allocation of more state revenues for education.

In a television discussion on the night before he announced his candidacy for a sixth term, Gov. Orval E. Faubus cited the need for an increase in salaries of Arkansas teachers if the state is to compete with other states for qualified educators.

Hubert H. Blanchard Jr. of the AEA told the Associated Press that Arkansas ranks second from the bottom with an average yearly salary of $3,969 for a teacher with a college degree.

Only Mississippi ranks lower, Blanchard said, with an average yearly salary of $3,830.

Blanchard cited National Education Association figures which showed that Alaska ranked tops in the country with its average yearly pay for teachers at $8,150. California was second at $7,375, followed by New York at $7,200.

And college-educated classroom teachers in Arkansas fared only slightly better, salary-wise than did all other persons employed in Arkansas in non-farm work, according to figures recently released by the U.S. Labor Department.

The average non-farm worker in Arkansas last year earned approximately $3,640, slightly less than $330 under the average college-educated teacher.

And the gap between teachers salaries and the salaries of persons in other degree fields is even greater.

The most recent study by the AEA of other degree fields was made in 1960-61. At that time the average salary for an Arkansas teacher was $3,340.

By comparison, engineers with college degrees earned $6,120; accountants earned $5,352; salespersons earned $5,280; general business graduates earned $5,136 and in other fields graduates earned $5,436.

Since that time, Blanchard said, the gap has closed somewhat but it is still wide.

Last March, the AEA proposed a five-step plan to provide more funds for education. Included in that plan was a recommendation that the state's minimum salary law for teachers be amended to provide an increase for teachers.

The proposal suggests that the increase be spread over a five-year period.

During the next biennium it asks that the minimum salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree be raised to $3,600. The present minimum is $2,700. It calls for an increase to $4,000 for teachers with a masters degree. The present minimum is $3,600.

The minimum salaries of teachers with bachelors degrees would increase each biennium for the next three bienniums to $4,000 in 1967, $4,400 in 1969 and $4,800 in 1971.

For those with masters degrees the increase would be $4,400 in 1967, $4,800 in 1969 and $5,200 in 1971.

NEA statistics show that presently 55 percent of the teachers in Arkansas are making less than $3,500 a year. Another 40 per cent are making between $3,500 and $4,499 and only five per cent are making between $4,500 and $5,499. And, according to those figures, no classroom teacher in the state is making more than $5,499.

To provide increased funds for teachers salaries and other educational purposes the AEA suggested the following:

1. Maintain as "general revenue taxes" all taxes now so classified.

2. Maintain existing tax sources without any new exemptions or reductions in rates.

Doctors Are Prized in Viet Nam

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — In South Viet Nam, where death comes with the stealth and suddenness of a tiger's pounce, the lives of a small group of American doctors are prized by both sides in the guerrilla fighting. "I didn't feel unsafe," said Dr. Henry C. Savage, a U.S. Public Health Service surgeon just back from duty in a Viet Nam city. "I wouldn't dare walk through Central Park at night, but I drove around Da Nang at night."

None of the doctors serving on the three American medical teams in South Viet Nam "regard themselves as on a hazardous assignment," said Savage.

Savage, 47, father of 10 children and chief of surgery in the Public Health Service hospital in Seattle, told newsmen about his February to May 1 stint in a Viet Nam hospital Tuesday before heading home.

The work of the American medical teams among the peasants, he said, is "proving our most effective counter-Communist program."

He said the Americans' work is aimed primarily at helping civilians, including thousands caught up and injured in the bloody skirmishes between the

THESE NINE GIRLS WILL ATTEND ARKANSAS GIRLS State at Camp Robinson June 7-13. This is an annual event sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary Department of Arkansas.

THE GIRLS AND THEIR CONTRIBUTORS ARE AS follows: Margie Herndon, Leslie Huddleston Unit 12 American Legion Auxiliary; Cissie Ellis, Junior Auxiliary; Mary Ann Bader, Century Bible Class; Myrtle Cox, B&PW Club; Karen Cobb, Rotary Club; Kathy Thrash, Kiwanis Club; Poleda Glanton, Bruner Ivory Handle Co.; Betty Schenck, J. C. and Jaycettes and Sharon Friih, VFW and VFW Auxiliary.

Communist Viet Cong and the U.S. backed government forces. But, he said, Viet Cong also slip in for treatment. "They are brought in, these young wounded, but healthy VCs," he said, adding:

"And we feel that this program is an effective instrument because anybody appreciates his life being saved. A VC or anybody else appreciates it when he knows that if he had not been treated by some qualified surgeon he would have died."

"We are reaching the peasant who has no other source of medical service and it is appreciated. When you travel in rural areas... you can hear 'Bac si, bac si,' on all sides. It means doctor in English, and you can hear it everywhere you go."

"You turn around and see a former patient, all smiles. He greets you, and says surely you remember him. You stop and think twice. Then you see a scar you recognize, or maybe it is a child with a foot in a cast you put on."

"And you find there is very much concern on the part of the Vietnamese for the safety for the American personnel."

On the general situation in Viet Nam, he expressed belief that "without American support this is a lost cause" and that if Viet Nam is lost to communism, Cambodia and Laos "will also go right in."

"The Vietnamese are really fine people, gracious people, proud people and not warlike," Savage said. "They are the victims of outside aggression."

Da Dang, where Savage was stationed, is a city of about 50,000 near the border of Laos and about 75 miles south of the Communist North Viet Nam border. Leading the American medical teams are:

At Da Nang, Dr. Edgar Archer Dillard Jr., of Durham, N.C., a native of Augusta, Ga.; at Can Tho, Dr. Robert Norton of Grinnell, Iowa, and Dr. Robert Edwards, of Wilder, N.H.; and at Nha Trang, Dr. Frank Black of Grand Junction, Colo.

Houston to Conference Action

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston athletic director Harry Fouke says the university is studying the Southwest Conference resolution against membership expansion before elaborating "on our future plans."

The conference, in its annual meeting at Lubbock last weekend, unanimously decided against adding a ninth member for the present. Houston had applied to join the conference.

"We are now studying the full meaning and implications of the recent Southwest Conference resolution relative to the expansion of the conference," Fouke said.

"As soon as all of our people are fully aware of the facts," he said, "then we will be in a better position to elaborate on our future plans."

The Southwest Conference already has a member in Houston — Rice University.

In its resolution, the SWC faculty committee said an increase in membership would make further expansion almost inevitable and would disrupt the round robin schedule in athletics.

The University of Houston is the second largest school in Texas.

Rules Separate Judges, Clerks

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett held today that the city of Dermott must use separate judges and clerks for a referendum election it plans to hold on the same day as the Democratic primary.

In an opinion to Ed Trice, secretary of the Chicot County board of election commissioners, Bennett said that different judges and clerks would have to be named because the Registrars, nurses and technicians are badly needed.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's biggest mystery today is being played out behind the cameras. Why did CBS News President Fred W. Friendly decide Tuesday while national balloting was going on, to denounce the industry's "Emmy Awards," primarily on grounds that are obvious and which have been matters of concern for many seasons.

Friendly, who was producer of "CBS Reports" until his elevation only seven weeks ago, says he has been concerned for a long time, about the Emmys' growing importance as the industry's top awards.

"This came home to me again when I saw the ballot and it made absolutely no sense," he said. "I decided that it was important to do something about it and I did."

Without clearing the matter with his network superiors, he said, he wrote a memorandum to his program producers ordering a boycott of the May 25 awards show, which will be broadcast by rival NBC.

All of Friendly's itemized criticisms are old and familiar. His two main points were that many award categories are unfair catch-alls for programs often as unlike as chalk and cheese and that many academy members who do the voting have failed to see many, if not most of the nominated programs. This is a situation which has bedeviled the awards committee for years.

Walter Cronkite, a member of Friendly's staff, was elected president of the academy in 1959-60 on a platform of reforming award procedures.

"We did not make a great deal of progress and much remained to be done when I lost hope," he admitted.

ABC television also has announced its withdrawal of support from the Academy. NBC is remaining loyal and well it might. It is stuck contractually to produce a 90-minute awards special in a couple of weeks.

No word has come at this writing that the entire CBS television network will follow Friendly out the academy door. Late Tuesday, in fact, NBC was big innings. Three other games were won by teams which led in the sixth inning or before. Salt Lake City beat Oklahoma City 6-5, Hawaii shaded Indianapolis 6-5 and Tacoma scored six runs in the sixth to defeat Seattle 8-6.

A homer by Dick Nen gave Spokane two runs and a tied game in the first inning with Portland. After the Beavers went ahead again 4-3, an Indian rally in the bottom of the ninth created another tie. Tom Agee doubled and Duke Sims was purposely passed before Garrido ended it with his home run.

Wayne Graham and Costen Shockley each hit a grand slam homer to give Arkansas its win over San Diego after a 6-0 deficit in the sixth. The Travelers' first two runs came in the bottom of the sixth on a four-bagger by Bob Lipski.

The Denver Bears were outlived by Dallas 15-7 but cashed in their scoring opportunities for five runs in the third and four in the seventh. A two-run homer by Lou Klimchick was the key blow.

Salt Lake City jumped on Los Angeles for five runs in the first three innings and held the advantage despite a late rally by the Braves. Hawaii overcame a 4-0 deficit for its win. After scoring a run in the first inning, Tacoma erupted in the sixth for six more for its winning margin. The big hit in that frame was a three-run homer by Dick Dietz.

Cartama.

The following morning Tani told the policeman everything she could remember about the guns.

When she finished speaking, Don Fernando sighed as if a nearly insupportable burden had been placed on his shoulders. He leaned back in his chair and stared at the ceiling.

"German guns, eh? Big Berthas, perhaps?"

Tani rubbed her forehead and tried to remember all the confusing terms Malcolm had mentioned to her. "It was something like Model 41," she said at last.

Don Fernando removed his gaze from the ceiling and looked steadily at Tani. His eyes narrowed, as he considered her last remark. "The Model 41 was an experimental rifle which the Germans used in Africa, as a matter of fact," he said slowly. "How are they to be brought into Cartama?"

Tani shook her head helplessly. "It's an amusing tale. Contraband rifles. Desperados smuggling them over deserts. I'm surprised you didn't invent camels and a love story."

Don Fernando laughed softly, but there was a tight, cold pain in his stomach. The narrow path he was traveling toward safety suddenly seemed knotted with dangerous curves.

Supposing it were all true, he thought anxiously. Should he turn this information over to Madrid? They would send alert, hard-eyed men down to deal with it. Yes, he thought gloomily and they would give him no credit at all. He would continue to direct traffic and see that beach shorts weren't worn in the village after five o'clock and never taste the fruits of victory.

But if he didn't notify Madrid, how could he explain later? He might deny that he had had any advance information of Domingo's plans. The policeman breathed easier; yes, that was safe. Or he could report that he had come on the plot accidentally, and had taken immediate steps to crush it. And that would be safe, if events went the other way.

Don Fernando turned to study a framed map of the Mediterranean coast which hung beside the portrait of the Generalissimo. He located the city of Algiers, and let his eyes rove slowly down the shoreline to what had formerly been Spanish Morocco. The port town of Ceuta would be a logical point of embarkation, he decided; it was directly across the sea from Cartama.

Without looking at Tani, he said, "The American. He tells you he will kill someone for Domingo, eh?"

"Yes."

"Even a stupid American is not that stupid, Tani. To kill someone for nothing. Someone he doesn't know. For no reason at all. It is ridiculous. You must find out his victim. And learn if the guns are to be brought to

"Then you will let me go?"

"If you are telling the truth."

He removed a yellow tablet from his desk drawer, and took a pen from an inkwell with the crisp, fussy gestures of an experienced bureaucrat.

"You have come to me with a problem," he said. "Quite properly, since I am the constable of Cartama. It seems you lost some valuables in Ceuta a month or so ago." Don Fernando nodded and began to write in a neat rapid hand. "Yes, exactly. A valise. Left in a taxi, or perhaps taken from your hotel room. You didn't report it to the police because—" After deliberating a moment, he smiled and continued writing. "There was not time, of course. You had to catch a bus or something like that. Now you have come to me for help. You wish me to call the police in Ceuta and make inquiries for you." He looked blandly at Tani, who was frowning at him in bewilderment. "The difficulty is, I have no budget for such calls. But if you can pay the charges—350 pesetas—I will make the call to Ceuta."

"You want 350 pesetas?" Tani said dubiously.

Don Fernando shrugged. "It's up to you, of course."

Tani sighed and removed three bills and two coins from her change purse. The policeman counted the money carefully, placed it in a cash box in his desk, and entered the amount in a ledger. Finally he wrote a receipt and gave it to Tani.

Now everything is in order. When his superiors in the provincial administration queried him about the call to Ceuta, his answers would be supported appropriately and disarmingly by many spoils of red tape.

"You may go now," he said and picked up the telephone. When the door closed behind her, the policeman rubbed his forehead slowly. In keeping her here, he was literally playing with fire.

Little Rock Bond Issue Approved

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A $4.3 million bond issue to build port facilities was approved here Tuesday by a vote of 2,305 to 2,079.

The Amendment 49 bonds carry a maximum tax of 1.75 mills, or 0.175 for each $1,000 of assessed value.

The bonds are to be retired over a period of 30 years. Funds from the sale of bonds would buy a port and industrial district site on the Arkansas River east of Little Rock.

Pearl Buck Says Writing Is Exciting

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

PERKASIE, Pa. (AP)—"This is a wonderful world for writers the most exciting time in history, yet our American writers are curiously isolated from it," says novelist Pearl Buck.

Approaching her 72nd birthday—only a little more than a month away—as occupied with plans and projects as ever in her distinguished literary career, Miss Buck thinks that isolation is so pronounced that "the readers are getting ahead of the writers."

"This will have to change," she said in an interview at her Bucks County farm home, "because our writers simply cannot go on and on being out of tune with their time, the time we have been expecting for centuries, with its changing relationships of peoples, its birth of nations, its dramatic challenges to leadership everywhere."

"Those I call our older younger writers are concerned with things other than the immediate world, in which each day seems to bring more changes and new problems."

"But I am sure the new writers will emerge, perhaps out of the Peace Corps as well as from the college and university campuses where there appears to be a market awareness of what is happening here and now."

Miss Buck won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1938. She is now working on a novel about India.

The daughter of American missionaries, she grew up in China, spent many adult years there, taught there, wrote about the country, became steeped in its culture and traditions. Inevitably, the big move was to China.

She believes that China eventually will cast off Red rule and become a nation not unlike the United States of today. How soon this may come to pass, she says, depends on how quickly and comprehensively China can be exposed to the rest of the world, especially the West.

"What is needed, and what in the end will take place in China, is reform from within. Red China is a perfect illustration of the truth that revolution—revolution, mind you, not reform—is the worst thing that can happen to a country, setting it back a thousand years," she said.

By general consent, her finest work is "The Good Earth," for which she received a Pulitzer Prize in 1932. That book prompted one critic to call Miss Buck one of "the foremost living novelists of the world" and "the ablest living interpreter of the Chinese character."

Born in Hillsboro, W. Va., June 26, 1892, Miss Buck settled on a 400-acre farm in this picturesque region many years ago. Here she founded Welcome House, an unusual kind of adoption agency, which she is extending nationally.

Over the years Welcome House has given its attention mainly to children to American-Asian parentage. Hundreds of these have been placed in American homes.

Sharing Miss Buck's own beautiful home are her four adopted children, three girls and a boy ranging in ages from 12 to 2½. Her husband, Richard J. Walsh, New York publisher, died four years ago.

Baking Co. Strike Continues

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—Local 325 of the American Bakers and Confectioners Union (AFL-CIO) continued Monday night their strike of the Colonial Baking Co. here.

Supervisory personnel have been baking bread and making deliveries at the firm since 42 members of the union struck Saturday for higher wages, more vacation time, increased welfare and pension payments and other benefits.

Roscoe Walker, president and manager of Colonial at El Dorado, issued a statement Monday night explaining the background of the strike.

Walker said the union walked out of negotiations Friday after he (Walker) refused to decide on a union counter-proposal to the company's proposal before sometime this week.

Walker said the union wanted him to reach a decision on the counter-proposal Friday or Saturday. He said he told the union he had to have more time to consider the counter-proposal.

Walker said he agreed to meet with the union any time this week.

No new negotiations had been planned by Monday night.

Sees Oil Future in East Arkansas

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Edward A. Albares of El Dorado, chairman of the Arkansas Oil and Gas Commission, said Tuesday that much of the state's future growth in petroleum will be in Eastern Arkansas.

He spoke at a four-state meeting of oilmen here.

Albares said 440 wells have been drilled in the 16,000 square mile region since 1885, but most were shallow and relatively unexplored.

Last year Arkansas produced 27,400,000 barrels of oil from 6,110 wells, Albares said, with gas production up to about 98 billion cubic feet—twice the 1958 production.

Albares spoke at the Mid-Continent District meeting of the American Petroleum Institute's Division of Production.

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Romania's Communist regime is reported to have freed between 1,000 and 2,000 political prisoners in what diplomatic sources believe is an effort to improve the climate for trade expansion talks with the United States, which open in Washington May 18.

Romania openly opposes Soviet control of its economy and is eager to develop trade with the West.

Real Marvel This Child Is Alive

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—At the bright and bubbly age of 2, Merry Maribel stands in her crib and throws kisses at the whole, wide, wonderful world. Indiscriminately, with either hand.

That she can do so is a medical marvel.

It's a marvel, first of all, that she feels like throwing kisses. Maribel has been through hell—a comatose living death with half her upper torso slowly rotting from a mysterious venom.

It's a marvel that she can move one of her tiny arms as high as her lips.

And it's a marvel, of course, that Maribel is alive.

Because she is alive, Maribel is famous—a flesh-and-blood symbol of an assault by modern medicine against a rare and massive infection.

Two hundred physicians—half the staff of Childrens Hospital—mobilized their talents after Maribel Olea was flown here Oct. 15 from Yuma, Ariz.

Maribel was dying. Her heart was "in failure," as doctors say, scarcely beating. Her left chest, back and arm and lower lip were swollen and black.

Maribel's mother, Mrs. Blanca Olea, 34, told this story:

A few days earlier, at their home in San Luis 15 miles below the Mexican border, Maribel fell ill and feverish. Her left arm began to swell from a mass of small bites. Two marks appeared on her lower lip.

The attack, apparently by some insect or reptile, was not witnessed. Maribel was too young to talk about it. But Gila monsters, lizards up to two feet long, had been seen in the neighborhood. Some species are venomous.

Maribel got worse. The village doctor could do nothing except tell Mrs. Olea the child was dying.

Mrs. Olea hitched a ride to Yuma. After emergency treatment, Maribel was brought to Good Samaritan Hospital here, and later was moved to Childrens Hospital.

By that time all traces of the original venom had disappeared in the infected flesh. Whatever it was, the poison had caused blood vessels to constrict, shutting off oxygen and nutrients. Gangrene—tissue death—had set in.

Maribel was given antibiotics to fight secondary infections, blood transfusions to fight anemia, digitalis to spur her flagging heart, and food.

"She was starving," a physician spokesman says. "She ate, and ate, and ate. What an appetite."

Special nurses around the clock began a month-long task of preparing the tortured body for a series of skin grafts.

Wet bandages, changed frequently, kept the infected crust soft while new flesh formed beneath. Finally, on Nov. 15, of Camden and Mrs. Norman Masterson of Stevensport, Ky.

No Interest in Electors Unpledged

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—There is little sentiment in Arkansas for electing unpledged presidential electors in November, Gov. Orval E. Faubus said today.

Gov. George Wallace of Alabama has promoted an unpledged slate in his state and he had talked about spreading the movement over the south in an effort to deadlock the electoral college.

Arkansas was one of the September period since those who obtain them will be able to vote for president.

In the meantime, Arkansans can qualify to vote for both federal and state offices in the general election by paying the poll tax before Oct. 2.

The Arkansas Supreme Court invalidated the main purpose of the special session—enactment of a voter registration law—when it held that no one can vote in a state, county or municipal election without paying the poll tax despite what the new registration law—Act 19—said.

This left the free poll tax provision for federal elections the only registration feature coming out of the special session.

Faubus also told newsmen that he expects a vacancy on the Highway Commission to be filled by May 27 but whether he or the commission will make the appointment was left open.

State law requires the commission to fill the vacancy if the governor does not make an appointment within 30 days. That time will have expired since the death of Commissioner Bill Joe Denton of Wilson.

In answer to a question, Faubus said that an accusation by E. T. (Gene) Ridgeway, one of his four Democratic primary opponents, that he (Faubus) had worked with Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett in an effort to declare Ridgeway ineligible for the race was without basis in fact.

Faubus declined further comment on the matter. Bennett indicated Tuesday that he will declare Ridgeway, an ex-convict, ineligible for the office if he (Bennett) is asked for a formal opinion.

Faubus signed a proclamation designating next week as Arkansas Dairy Festival Week in Arkansas. The week will be celebrated by crowning of a new dairy princess, Saturday May 23.

Anti-Poverty Amendments Expected

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The crucial voting on amendments to President Johnson's antipoverty bill is expected to begin today in the House Education and Labor Committee.

Democratic members of the committee have been meeting in caucus for a week to iron out their position on a series of amendments. They are reported in full agreement on all but one.

The one area of discord center on the role of parochial schools and agencies should play in the local administration of the program.

Activities begin today with a meeting of the committee's special subcommittee on poverty. It is expected to approve the bill and send it to the full committee, which then will consider the series of amendments.

Republicans have complained loudly over the Democratic caucus meetings. They have cried "lockout" and "partisanship."

The committee's ranking Republican, Rep. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, has expressed fears about an attempted steamroller by the Democrats.

"We hope we will not be faced with the proposition of making immediate decisions," Frelinghuysen said Monday and added: "We're still optimistic that our views will be received." Frelinghuysen and other Republicans say they want the bill changed, first, to eliminate what they call a new federal agency of poverty, and, second, to allot funds to the states and let them administer the program. These changes have been incorporated into a Republican bill introduced by Frelinghuysen. Committee Republicans met for more than two hours Monday with Sargent Shriver, the man picked by President Johnson to administer the war on poverty. Frelinghuysen later told newsmen that Shriver had not changed the minds of the Republicans "one iota." Johnson's bill, which would provide $963 million in fiscal 1965 to fight poverty, would include a variety of programs: 1. A job corps, work-training programs, and work-study programs for youth. 2. Urban and rural community action programs. 3. Loans and grants to combat poverty in rural areas. 4. Loans to businesses to encourage employment and investment. 5. Funds to stimulate states for experimental programs to help unemployed fathers get jobs.

Nashville Repeals Union Ordinance

NASHVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Mayor Cecil J. Callahan said Tuesday the Nashville City Council voted unanimously to repeal an anti-union ordinance, "because we figured it was unconstitutional."

The ordinance, which called for a $1,000-a-day licensing fee from union organizers working in the city, was never invoked. Courts have declared similar ordinances unconstitutional.

one month after she entered the hospital, Maribel was ready for her first operation. Six more followed. X-ray therapy, to discourage growth of scar tissue, was instituted.

As her once-wasted form healed and grew plump, Maribel's spirits thrived.

"She became a little tyrant," says her day nurse, Mrs. Chrystalee Maxwell. "Spoiled was no word for it. But how could you help but love her?"

Maribel learned tricks, and she learned to smile, even to laugh, when gifts came in from all over this country, Canada and Mexico.

Maribel goes home soon to San Luis to rejoin sisters Gabriella, 8, and Merna, 1, and brother Carlos, 6. Her mother works there as a waitress to support the fatherless family.

A physician who attended her says of her future:

"It's always a problem in these cases. They thrive here. They have a better life than they'll ever know again. They have plenty of food."

"How are they going to get along in the home situation?" He shakes his head, a little sadly. "We don't know. We never know."

Special Meet Was Waste of Time

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The recent special legislative session was largely a waste of time if interest in free poll tax receipts is an indication.

So far, 63 counties have reported to the state auditor that they issued a total of 1,827 of the free poll tax receipts during an April 11-30 period when voters could qualify for federal elections without paying a poll tax.

Four counties—Cleburne, Drew, Izard and Monroe—reported that they had not a single request for a free receipt. Carroll and Nevada counties had only one each.

The main interest was in Pulaski County which issued 406 and in Lincoln County which issued 100. Even in these counties, however, the number of free receipts is not enough to influence any election even if the persons who obtained them could vote.

The Pulaski County free registrants won't even be able to use their receipts because there is no federal contest in the primary elections in the county.

The Lincoln County voters can choose between Rep. Oran Harris, D-Ark., and Dean Murphy of Hope in the 4th Congressional District race.

Voters in the 3rd Congressional District also will be able to use their free receipts in the primaries because two Republicans are running for Congress in that area.

Free receipts will be issued again in a Sept. 11-30 period to qualify non poll-tax payers for the general election. Officials expect a great deal more interest in the free receipts in the

Welcome to "La Fonda del Sol"!

¡Bienvenido! Esta usted en su casa . . . "Welcome! This is your house . . ." and in the gay spirit of South American hospitality, the smiling Latin lad in the photo prepares a "granizado" for two wide-eyed youngsters on a visit to what is perhaps New York's most colorful restaurant, La Fonda del Sol.

This vividly decorated cart is a familiar sight as it winds and vents its way along the village streets in South America and Mexico, offering "granizado," a concoction of cherry, lime, raspberry or chocolate flavored syrup poured over chilled ice in a paper cup to be sucked like an ice cream cone.

When you come to New York to visit the World's Fair, rest and refresh yourself and your family on a Sunday afternoon at La Fonda; it's open from 1 to 9 p.m. on Sundays when "granizados" are served free to children. In an atmosphere reflecting all the color, folklore and gaiety of our neighbors to the South, you are invited to enjoy food and beverages as they are prepared in the countries under the Latin American sun. The waiters and pantry maids wear bright native garb, while the doormen wear two sombreros, one atop the other, and handsome ponchos emblazoned with a golden sun. And the magnificent collections of native crafts and artifacts enthrall adults and children, alike.

La Fonda del Sol means "The Inn of the Sun," and you'll find it in the Time and Life Building on the Avenue of the Americas, with its entrance on 51st Street (right across from Radio City Music Hall). It's open every day, with luncheon a la carte served from noon until 3 p.m., and dinner from 5 to 11 p.m. Prices are moderate, and the menu includes familiar American fare, too.

A New Look — An Old Familiar Name

We are sure that many of you knew that in 1955 Kroger bought the Childs Food Store in East Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas. Since then many of the stores have continued to operate as "Childs" Stores even though owned and operated by The Kroger Co. Since we have so many friends in Hope and the surrounding area who remember Kroger from the days when we had our old store at 419 South Main Street we decided to completely remodel the Childs store and bring the Kroger name back to Hope once again. We cordially invite you to pay us a visit and see the many improvements we have made to make your shopping more enjoyable. We've enlarged the self-service meat, dairy, frozen foods, and Ice Cream departments, added new, metal shelving, department markers and widened the aisles too, to make your shopping easier. We think you'll like shopping at your newly remodeled Kroger store.

Jim Crow Gate Opens Very Slowly

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — For three centuries American Negroes had been waiting at the gate that kept them in the Jim Crow cellar of American life. Then on May 17, 1954 the Supreme Court unlocked it for them.

That was 10 years ago but Negroes have been able to push it open only very slowly.

On that far-reaching day in May the court said public school segregation because of a child's race was wrong, that it meant unequal treatment and was therefore unconstitutional. But the ruling really went far beyond schools.

For in effect the court said the very principle of segregation is wrong, which meant from then on Negroes could fight with confidence against all forms of segregation and discrimination in public places.

They have been fighting since. And many white people — including the clergy — who had no racial prejudice but had sat idly by through the decades until 1954 have joined them in the struggle.

But prejudiced whites are an obstinate army who never really believed the Declaration of Independence which said all men are created equal and have tried to ignore or defy the court in preserving segregation and discrimination.

Even some white Christian churches still refuse to let Negroes in. And Negroes are discovering, if they doubted it, that the South has no monopoly on prejudice. They have found it intensely against them in the North, too.

Negroes, with increasing confidence and swelling numbers, have sought to batter down the barriers in a thousand places, a hundred ways, North and South through sit-ins, lie-downs, marches, freedom rides, demonstrations and court fights against discrimination in voting, restaurants, schools, housing, unions.

As the struggle grows, so does violence, which causes national concern.

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence in 1776 and had slaves but sought to end slavery, also had concern about the future when he thought about the condition of the Negro in America.

He said: "I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just."

If it had not been for that court decision of 10 years ago the American Negro might still be suffering discrimination in comparative silence for the law — or the court's interpretation of the law — was again him.

Police would probably have felt far freer to smash Negro protests because of a decision of the Supreme Court in 1896 which said segregation was constitutional.

It wasn't until 20 years later that Negroes were able to begin chipping away at that decision. This was against a discriminatory housing ordinance in Louisville. But the fight thereafter was tortured and slow.

The real march began in the 1930s when the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People deided on a strategy which was crowned with the final triumph of 1954.

This was the strategy: but by bit, case by case, fight all the way up to the Supreme Court specific cases of discrimination, like segregation of Negroes on buses, trains, in graduate schools. They won case after case but never total victory.

In each specific case the court might say the segregation practiced was wrong without ruling out the principle of segregation. That finally came 10 years ago, thus wiping out completely the decision of 1896.

Negro agitation will increase this summer and even if Congress approves the kind of civil rights bill the Negroes want it will still be, as their leadership has said, only a part of what they feel is their due.

Students Held in Cross Burning

They were ordered to appear in Municipal Court today.

"You know, George, I still say 'Moonlight Bay' is the absolute most!"

Sure to Please: Curry and Rice

Like fingerprints, tastes in curry seem to vary with the individual. The cook of India makes her own curry powder, and may pulverize from five to fifty different ingredients to obtain just the precise flavor she wants for a particular dish. In other countries such precision is not required; prepared curry powder will do the trick. But the foods to be curried, the amount of spice used and the accompaniments are subject to wide variation. Two facts do not seem to change, however: curries are popular, and are always accompanied by rice.

The reason for the latter fact is simple. Whether the curry is hair-curling hot or subtle as a hint, the bland flavor of rice sets it off ideally. Rice adds to the attraction of the dish, too, with its contrasting texture and compatible color — snowy white or delicate yellow as in the Saffron Rice below.

Lamb Curry With Bananas is a Caribbean version of the classic Indian curry. Bananas as the single accompaniment and saffron rice (yellow rice) give it the island touch.

- Lamb Curry With Bananas
- 1 cup thinly sliced onion
 - 2 cups chopped green pepper
 - 1 small clove garlic, minced
 - 3 tablespoons olive oil, butter or margarine
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 2 cups meat stock or bouillon
 - 1/2 cup tomato sauce
 - 2 tablespoons minced parsley
 - 1 tablespoon curry powder
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 1 large bay leaf
 - 1 pinch thyme
 - 2 whole cloves
 - Dash of ground tumeric
 - 2 1/2 to 3 cups cooked lamb, cubed
 - 3 bananas, sliced about 1/2-inch thick

Saffron Rice:
1 cup uncooked rice
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon saffron
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Cook onion, green pepper, and garlic in 2 tablespoons oil until golden. Sprinkle on flour, stir until well blended. Add meat stock, simmer until thick and smooth. Add tomato sauce, parsley and seasonings; simmer about 15 minutes. Stir in the meat and let stand in the sauce — preferably overnight but at least an hour. Shortly before serving, cook banana slices in remaining oil. Cook lamb mixture just long enough to heat it through. Serve over Saffron Rice and garnish with the sautéed banana slices. To prepare Saffron Rice, combine ingredients in a saucepan. Heat to boiling. Stir, cover, and cook over low heat until rice is tender, about 15 minutes.

Group Wants to Form New Bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Comptroller of Currency is considering an application for the formation of a First National Bank of Jacksonville, Ark.

Six businessmen applied April 7, claiming a capital structure of $500,000, including $200,000 surplus and $100,000 undivided profits.

William A. Robsen of Memphis, chief national bank examiner, has been to Jacksonville to see if a second bank is needed.

The existing bank in Jacksonville is the Jacksonville State

Brians said the white youths set the cross afire and were carrying it toward the student's home when the youth's father fired a shotgun into the air and dispersed them.

The youth told newsmen he had been knocked down by an older white boy earlier last week after he had eaten in the school cafeteria with Negro students. School authorities said a student who hit the boy was suspended.

Brians said the 10 either helped burn the cross or conspired to burn it.

Doctor Wins Hours Long Fight to Die

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—In the very hospital where he had learned how to save lives, a lonely Cuban doctor plunged a scalpel into his heart Tuesday night and won his hours — long fight to die.

Dr. Jose Reposo, 40, a surgeon, began his suicide effort Tuesday afternoon when he slashed himself in the chest and abdomen but inflicted only superficial wounds. Frustrated, he went to a viaduct and prepared to jump 60 feet to the pavement.

Police were summoned. The officers approached the man, who clung to the viaduct railing, his body arched out over the street, his toes wedged in bracing outside the railing.

"Don't jump, George," a patrolman cried. "We want to help you."

Reposo clung to the railing about 15 minutes. While police on the bridge held his attention, firemen spread a net below.

A crowd of about 300 gathered. The onlookers watched in silence as he firemen braced for his jump. He relaxed his grip and dropped, arms spread wide, to the street.

Cheers went up as firemen caught him in the quilted-canvas net.

Cannon Was Powerful in House

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Clarence Cannon is dead at 85, after 41 years in the House, and outside his own state of Missouri probably very few Americans ever heard much of him. Yet, he was one of the most powerful men in Congress.

This kind of anonymity is why tourists get disappointed when they visit the Capitol, expecting to see Daniel Websters, and very often find instead in the House or Senate just a handful of men sitting around and ignoring the speaker.

There isn't a Daniel Webster in the place these days. But there are powerful men there like Cannon, who died Monday, and, like Cannon, are not broadly known because of the way they operate, even though they are old timers.

They're the chairmen of powerful committees. They do their work in committee offices, aided by staffs, rather than on the floor of the House or Senate. Their power is not in oratory but in their control over legislation.

Cannon, a Democrat and an autocrat and chairman of the House Appropriations Committee for 20 years, took seriously his job as a watchdog on government spending. He was tough and jealous of his power.

It has been estimated that in his time his committee, after chops and slices and cross-examination, approved and sent up to the full House for a vote as much as a trillion dollars in spending bills.

But that was after Cannon and his crew of Democratic and Republican committee members cut the bills below what Democratic and Republican presidents asked.

Cannon was the oldest member of the House but not the oldest in Congress. That distinction belongs to his senior by one year, 86-year old Sen. Carl Hayden, Arizona Democrat and dean of Congress. He has been there 52 years.

Hayden, as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, was Cannon's opposite number. But few Americans probably ever heard much of Hayden either, and few ever saw him until President Johnson addressed Congress last Nov. 27.

There, sitting behind the President but looking half asleep, was Hayden and, beside him, 72-year old John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, speaker of the House.

These two men — if Johnson should die — are next in line for the presidency. McCormack would be first.

Another truly powerful congressional figure not widely known is Rep. Wilbur Mills, Arkansas Democrat.

Mills, 54 and in Congress 25 years, is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which handles all revenue legislation, particularly income taxes, before the full House can vote on it. This group shapes what the House votes on.

For years now it has bottled up the Kennedy — Johnson program of medical care for the aged. Mills has been the chief bottler.

The most powerful committee in Congress — the House Committee — is headed by the very conservative Rep. Howard W. Smith, an 81-year old Virginia Democrat who has been in alive," said Lt. Howard Turner, one of the firemen. "He said, 'Do you have a cigarette?'"

He told police he was "lonely, very lonely."

Reposo chatted with the attendants of the ambulance that took him to Albany Medical Center Hospital, where he was treated for the chest and abdominal cuts.

Reposo sat on an operating table in the emergency room, talking with a surgeon he had trained with in the early 1940s.

He appeared "rational and lucid," a medical center spokesman said.

Suddenly, as the surgeon turned his back, the Cuban snatched a scalpel and stabbed it deep into his chest.

"It was a surgeon's job," the hospital spokesman said. "It rent the heart, opening a big wound that made it easy for doctors to get to the heart and massage it."

He died about two hours later, despite the efforts of a score of medical men and nurses to save him.

Reposo, who attended the University of Havana Medical School and was a 1949 graduate of Albany Medical College, was scheduled to begin a residency in internal medicine this summer at the hospital where he died.

The hospital said he was divorced and the father of two. His mother reportedly lives in Cuba.

He had come here from California about two months ago, but it was not known what he had been doing there. He had lived here in a rented room.

Congress 32 years.

This committee can suffocate a bill which has been approved by another committee and, except under unusual conditions, keep it from getting up to the full House for a vote.

In running his show Smith is not distinguished in the public mind for the speeches he makes. But he is certainly distinguished in the congressional mind for the power he holds and wields.

If the question is asked—how come men of the age of Cannon, Hayden and Smith can continue in such positions of great power without challenge — the answer is simple: They got and held their jobs through the seniority system.

Nothing is going to be done to change the system, because all the younger members of Congress know that if they can just last long enough they, too, will become chairmen and nothing will ever be done to dislodge them.

Party Given for Divorced Couple

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Where but in Hollywood would they give a party for a divorced couple?

Universal Studios Tuesday night honored Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor, co-stars in the movie thriller, "The Night Walker."

Although divorced a dozen years, "Barbara and I have remained good friends," says

Taylor. Miss Stanwyck, 56, said she was asked "if I would have any objection if Bob appeared in the picture. I said, 'Of course not — but you'd better ask Mr. and Mrs. Taylor.'"

Taylor, 52, said, "It's all right with me if it's all right with her."

The present Mrs. Taylor, actress Ursula Thiess, was asked if it was all right with her. "Not necessarily," she said, smiling enigmatically.

Business Climate Is Looking Good

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Like the weather, business relations with government are always subject to change. But today a generally pleasant climate seems to be in prospect.

Part of this expectation is due to the feeling that the new administration in Washington will see things more the way a businessman does. Part is due to the growing prosperity which leaves less excuse or desire for carping. And part is due to the cut in federal taxes, the middle of the road monetary policy on money and credit, the stressing by Washington that profits are a good thing and that wages and prices should rise only moderately if at all — policies that business likes or can live with.

Business doesn't like the recent rash of antitrust actions, nor the harder line on mergers, nor the moves to extend government involvement in many lines through new regulations.

But overall the climate seems much better than a year ago.

How long this will last is anyone's guess. Government is now so involved with business—through regulations, competition, labor mediation, awarding and cancelling of contracts—that clashes between government and specific industries or individual companies are almost weekly occurrences.

And Washington has made it plain it will push its idea of wage and price guidelines in the months ahead. These will be tested this summer in important labor contract negotiations, notably in the auto industry.

Government regulatory agencies doubtless will step on many toes. For one example, this week the nation's stock exchanges and the Securities & Exchange Commission will start debating new rules for stock specialists—the brokers who are assigned to guide the trading in a particular stock to prevent unruly markets.

And businessmen are with fair regularity called before various executive or congressional investigating bodies—a fixture in modern business life which many industrialists regard as an expensive time waster, especially when the investigations tend to overlap.

Government needs a healthy business community to make the economy grow if it's to combat unemployment and tackle poverty. It needs business and banking cooperation if it's to lick the balance of payments problem that in recent years drained too many dollars and gold into foreign hands.

If the wage-price difficulties brewing this summer can be handled to the satisfaction of labor, management and government, all of today's outpouring of good feeling may be justified—that is, until new problems or conflicts come along.

Wants Regular Road Director

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus suggested Monday that the Arkansas Highway Commission appoint a regular director for the state Highway Department.

Ward Goodman, chief highway engineer, has been acting as director since the resignation on May 1, 1963 of Director F. R. Oliver.

"But there are two jobs (director and chief engineer) there," Faubus said, "and there should be two men doing them."

Faubus said Goodman has done a good job and said his comments should not be taken as criticism of Goodman.

The Highway Commission has refused to comment on whom it might name to the directorship or when the appointment would be made.

Faubus restated an earlier view that the director does not necessarily have to be an engineer, though only engineers have held the post since the commission was reorganized under the Mack - Blackwell Amendment to the state constitution in 1953.

Faubus also said he has not made up his mind on a replacement for the late Highway Commissioner Bill Joe Denton.

Hard Time Becoming Governor

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The new governor, soaked by rain, muttered, "If there ever was a poor devil who had a hard time becoming governor it looks like me."

Gov. John Julian McKeithen, 45, had just finished an inaugural speech Tuesday in a downpour that reduced his visible audience to a few diehards under umbrellas.

McKeithen cast aside part of his text when the sound system failed. He urged those present to read the full speech in the newspapers.

The favorite inaugural joke was that outgoing Gov. Jimmie H. Davis apparently was taking the sunshine with him. "Sunshine" is one of his special words.

Davis, a one-time hillbilly singer, composed the country classic, "You Are My Sunshine," has a horse named Sunshine and a granddaughter whose middle name is Sunshine.

In his speech, McKeithen continued his wooing of industrialists. He has said industry must have a tax break if the state is to compete against neighboring states for new industry.

Some 200 industrialists were honor guests at a buffet luncheon after the inauguration ceremony, held on the steps of the towering capitol that "Kingfish" Huey Long built.

Democrat McKeithen, a one-time protégé of Huey's brother, the late Gov. Earl K. Long, told his guests:

"If you find anything you don't like in Louisiana—in taxes or in government you come to us. We want you as part of the great state of Louisiana."

Ex-President Denounces Panama Vote

By LUIS NOLI
PANAMA (AP) — Government candidate Marco A. Robles is Panama's new president-elect, on the basis of nearly complete returns. The pre-election favorite, ex-president Arnulfo Arias, denounced the outcome as a "most scandalous fraud."

Returns from 1,039 of the 1,144 precincts gave Robles an 11,066-vote margin over Arias—124,830 to 113,764. With seven candidates in the field, Robles got about 40 per cent of the total vote.

Arias claimed official figures released by the Election Tribunal were spurious and said the people would not tolerate violation of their will. He gave no indication of personal action to challenge the results of Sunday's voting.

Col. Bolivar Vallarino, commander of the 3,000-man National Guard, was expected to take decisive action against any violent protests by Arias supporters. Vallarino generally is considered an opponent of Arias and is blamed by the ex-president for his ouster from office in 1941 and again in 1951.

The National Electoral Review Junta will meet Saturday to begin a scrutiny of election documents for any irregularities. It was generally expected that the junta's findings would not appreciably change the results.

Juan de Arco Galindo who ran far behind in third place, also questioned the official figures.

President Robert Chiari's government took stringent precautions against voting frauds. It was these new safeguards which delayed the final count three days.

Each of the 19 parties had one man and the National Electoral Tribunal two at each of the 1,141 voting stations. Travel was prohibited on voting day, except for cases of proven emergency. This was to prevent voters being trucked from one part of the country to another.

Robles, a 58-year-old banker-politician, was Chiari's minister of government and justice until five months ago. He drew most of his strength from rural areas.

The president-elect has promised a firm stand in negotiations with the United States on Canal Zone treaty issues. He planned a California vacation as soon as he was certified president-elect. His term, beginning Oct. 1, will be for four years.

Informative Group Formed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Informative Association was incorporated at Little Rock Tuesday to "enlighten the public on the activities of the NAACP in Arkansas."

The articles of incorporation said the non-profit agency would publish a weekly or monthly pamphlet or brochure and utilize advertising to tell "of the matters and methods of operations taken up by the

Now it's "No-cook" Jam!

Like strawberries? Loathe their short season? Then look at today's recipe for Strawberry Jam, for it offers you a quick new way to keep the fresh flavor of strawberries at hand for months to come. The fruit is not cooked. Fresh berry flavor can't escape in steam. No need to spend time skimming or paraffining this jam! Follow these simple steps and store away strawberry flavor for your family now.

Strawberry Jam
Yield: about 6 medium (8 oz.) glasses
2 cups prepared fruit (about 1 qt. fully ripe strawberries)
4 cups (1 1/2 lbs.) sugar
1 box Sure-Jell Fruit Pectin
1 cup water

First, prepare the fruit. Thoroughly crush, 1 layer at a time, about 1 quart fully ripe strawberries. Measure 2 cups into a large bowl or pan.

Then make the jam. Measure sugar, add to fruit, mix well, and let stand. Mix water and powdered fruit pectin in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Stir into fruit mixture. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (There will be a few remaining sugar crystals.) Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with tight lids. When jam is set, (may take up to 24 hours), store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in the refrigerator.

Lazybones Cookout

Two elements for a successful cookout—eager eaters, effort mender. The eager eaters are always buzzing around. The effort mender is part and parcel of the menu.

Leading off plans for a lazybones cookout are Ham-Pineapple Kabobs. For these, alternately string pineapple chunks, green pepper squares and marinated ham cubes on skewers. The marinade: A mixture of pineapple juice seasoned to taste with soy sauce, lemon juice, brown sugar and the ground spices—cloves, dry mustard, ginger. Cooking time: about 15 minutes, brushing with marinade as kabobs are turned.

Cooking time for Herbed French Fries and mixed vegetables is about 25 minutes. For four eager eaters, turn out a package each of frozen French fries and mixed vegetables onto individual squares of foil wrap. Season each to taste, butter the vegetables, wrap securely, place on grill. Turn packages every 5 minutes.

For piping hot, toasted Sesame rolls, 5 minutes on a hot spot atop the grill will do.

Sesame Rolls
2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds
4 oblong French rolls

Combine butter and sesame seeds. Cut French rolls in half, horizontally. Spread sesame butter on cut sides of rolls. Place halves on a foil pan. Toast over hot coals until crisp. Yield: 4 servings.

Recreation Important to Agriculture

By OVID MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman predicts that within 20 years recreation will be agriculture's largest single source of income. At the present time, beef cattle hold that place.

The secretary expressed this belief in a talk before the final meeting of the newspaper farm editors here Tuesday. He said that the nation's increasing population and rising income levels will bring greater demands for recreational facilities in rural areas.

Action on the part of farmers, their leaders and government to help meet this demand will go a long way, Freeman said, toward solving surplus crop problems. Land not needed for crop and livestock production would be diverted to hunting lodges, swimming pools, camping grounds, golf courses and the like.

The department itself is working through its Rural Areas Development Program to bring shifts in use of land from unneeded crops to recreational facilities.

This program offers more for low-income farm families, he said, than the big commodity programs with their price supports and production adjustment operations. The department will help farmers establish recreational facilities through loans, grants and technical advice.

The secretary said that as new and better roads are built into rural areas, more urbanites will buy land—particularly in mountain and stream areas —

NAACP.

The petitioners were Lloyd Cabbiness Sr. and his wife, Mary Lou, and Donald R. Langston, all of Little Rock. Cabbiness said the first pamphlet would probably be published in about a month.

Now Judge Opens Books to GOP

ASHDOWN, Ark. (AP)—Little River County Judge Ray Sikes said Monday that he would allow a Republican field worker to photograph county records if the worker would submit a written application.

Sikes first denied Truman Altenbaumer permission to photograph the records when Altenbaumer requested permission to do so Monday morning.

Sikes said he was not sure whether it was legal to photograph county records. Sikes made the decision to allow the records to be photographed after a telephone conference with Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett.

He said if Altenbaumer would submit the written application the county clerk would notify Altenbaumer when the records would be brought out of the vault and made available for photographing.

Hall Dedicated at Henderson

ARKADELPHIA Ark. (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus dedicated the new McBrien Hall at Henderson State College Tuesday and noted that it was the seventh educational facility to be dedicated in the past six months in Arkansas.

Faubus commented on what he termed a "new morality—a good life." He said this philosophy dictated that progress had made certain things out of date, that the interpretation of the Bible must be revised.

He said that in spite of this new philosophy, "the Sermon on the Mount and the Golden Rule are not outmoded and will to build vacation cabins.

Other forecasts made by Freeman at the editors' meeting included:

Congress will pass a broadened food stamp plan already passed by the House.

New wheat and cotton commodity programs passed by Congress this year will greatly improve agricultural conditions in areas where these crops are grown.

NATO Now Quivers in Comfort

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—NATO, born in peril, quivers in comfort.

The foreign ministers of the 15 member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met at the Hague today to discuss their problems, of which they have plenty, and mostly of their own doing.

They have splits just at a time when—because the Soviet Union is occupied by its split with Red China—they might be solidifying themselves for the future.

But NATO has had an uneasy history: fright created it and, when it wasn't tormented by problems from the outside, it manufactured them from the inside.

Scared by the fear of Soviet power — after the Communists took over Czechoslovakia—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg formed an alliance for mutual defense. They wanted the United States in, too.

That was in March 1948, three months before Stalin tried to grab Berlin with a blockade. It took the United States a year to smash the blockade with an airlift. By then this country had decided to cast its lot with Europe.

NATO was formed April 4, 1949. The United States had a marvelous protective umbrella over Western Europe then because it alone had the atomic bomb.

This meant the Allies' ground troops could hold off a Soviet attack, if it came, until American planes went to work with the bombs.

This kind of thinking had to be altered for by August 1953, the United States and the Soviet Union both had nuclear bombs. But ground troops were still needed.

It was agreed NATO would have 50 divisions for defense. But the United States was the only member which ever lived up fully to its commitments.

NATO didn't really get going on a defense force until the Communists began the Korean War in 1950 and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was made commander.

But the desire of the Allies to relax their vigilance — if war didn't seem too likely, they could save money by not spending it on armaments—showed up early, as early as September 1950.

At that time it seemed the Korean war might be over soon. President Harry S. Truman had to warn NATO that the greatest danger to the West would be in ever letting down its guard.

Even in those early years, although he was then in retirement, Gen. Charles de Gaulle was a force for disunity. He complained the identity of French troops would be lost in the combined armies of NATO.

By 1955, with Stalin gone, the Soviet Union began to propagandize the West about its peaceful intentions. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had to warn the NATO members not to let themselves be weakened by this.

NATO suffered an internal convulsion in 1956 when Britain and France, without telling its partners, invaded Egypt. The Russians jolted the West, but stood by warning they would hit Britain with missiles, although no one was sure the Soviet Union had missiles then.

The United States turned on Britain and France, told them to quit in Egypt. They did.

On May 31, 1958, De Gaulle returned to power as premier and within a month began dismantling the unity of NATO by telling the United States France would make its own nuclear weapons.

Then he had a new idea: that the United States, Britain and France should be the bosses of NATO. The idea was a "dictatorate." The United States wouldn't buy it, saying this would mean less participation for the smaller countries.

He went on from there until now, as president, with dreams of a tremendous France, he talks in terms of a Europe of "fatherlands," a loose association of fully sovereign states as independent of the United States as possible.

Meanwhile, two other NATO partners have developed bitterness to each other, Greece and Turkey, over the fighting in Cyprus. Secretary of State Dean Rusk opposes the "fatherlands" idea, insists on "Atlantic partnership."

It is against this background that the foreign ministers meet, consumed with their own splits at the very moment when the Communist world is split.

About one-half the U.S. strawberry crop is processed as frozen food, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.
